

CongressDailyAM

FRIDAY

July 20, 2007

ART HOUSE. It's no Capital Grille, but Washington movers and shakers might want to consider a new venue for deal-making. Wolf Trap, the performing arts center in Vienna, Va., has added two insiders to its National Advisory Council for the Arts. Former Sen. Bob Kerrey, D-Neb., and Debbie Dingell of the General Motors Foundation join the chairman, former Transportation Secretary Norman Mineta, on the council, which aims to make Wolf Trap a model of environmental responsibility. Dingell is married to House Energy and Commerce Chairman Dingell.